FOREWORD

FOREWORD

IN the following catalogue are briefly described the manuscripts, the rare editions of great books, the fine bindings and other literary treasures forming one portion of the notable library of Mr. Adolph Lewisohn. Only the rare combination of knowledge, the true booklover's taste and ample means could accomplish the formation of a library so exceptional in the uniform high quality of its contents, the world's outstanding books, and so pleasantly lacking the "near literature" usually found on the shelves of those less well informed.

An hour passed with Mr. Lewisohn among his books could not fail to impress one with the extent of his reading, and it would be difficult indeed to take up any particular volume without finding him well informed both as to the exact edition and the subject to which it relates. Mr. Lewisohn's books are his friends, not the least among the host of friends he numbers, and his ability to quote interesting passages from them shows how intimate the friendship is.

Mr. Lewisohn is a lover of fine bindings, and his library contains numerous examples of the work of great binders, the old masterbinders, as well as the new, and many lovely bindings are appropriately displayed in dust-proof glass-topped tables. A remark of the late Robert Hoe applies especially well to this library and its owner: "Those who love books should have them in custody and take the best of care of them."

Several of the departments of the library are especially rich, and a synopsis of these will be found in the following paragraphs; but the reader must recognize the difficulty of indicating the rarities in a collection of books consisting almost wholly of rarities.

MANUSCRIPTS

The collection of manuscripts is a very interesting one, including specimens of various schools and countries, well illustrating the art of manuscript illumination. Beginning with an early Thirteenth Century Psalter, on vellum, of the characteristic curious workmanshhip of the period; and an equally old vellum Psalter of curious German workmanship; and ranging through various periods we find an interesting manuscript in Arabic; an ancient Hebrew Cabalistic manuscript on vellum; several fine old illuminated examples of the Book of Esther written in Hebrew characters; two splendid Horae on vellum, with beautiful large miniatures; Martial's Epigrams, an Italian manuscript on the finest thin white vellum; a rare manuscript Mochsor in Hebrew characters; two Persian manuscripts with a large number of miniatures beautifully executed in gold and colors; an early rubricated Seneca; and continuing down to a Nineteenth Century Spanish manuscript on vellum, relating to heraldry. These fine examples are all illuminated and decorated or rubricated, and are all in an excellent state of preservation.

INCUNABULA

The collection is rich in early printed books, and Incunabula, or books printed in the half century following the invention of printing, are well represented. It is gratifying to find that the earliest was printed in Mainz, from which place printing spread through Germany to Italy. The splendid copy of Cicero's Officis was printed in Mainz in 1466 by Johannes Fust and Petrus de Gernsshem, the former of whom is supposed to have shared in the invention of printing with Gutenberg. There is a magnificent copy of Ptolemaeus' Cosmographia printed in Rome in 1478, in a handsome binding done for a member of the royal family of England; a fine copy of Nicolaus de Ausmo's Supplementum Summae Pisanellae printed by Leonardt Wild de Ratisbona in Venice, 1489, in a fine old binding; the Nuremberg Chronicle printed by Koberger in 1493, a copy without the usual mutilations; the First Edition of Aristotle's Organum printed at Venice by Aldus in 1495; and that masterpiece of the Aldine Press, the Poliphili Hypnerotomachia of Francesco Colonna. These examples indicate the high quality of the collection of early printed books.

BIBLES

In the formation of this library especial attention has been given to Bibles, and this department is rich in notable and rare editions. Beginning in 1478 we find the Latin Bibles printed in this year at Venice and Nuremberg by Wild and Koberger respectively; the Latin Bible of 1484, one of the famous "Fontibus ex Graecis" editions; a Latin Bible with curious woodcuts printed as Basle in 1498; a fine copy of the rare "Bug Bible" of 1549; the Douay version, the Old Testament of which, 1609-10, is the Editio Princeps of the Roman Catholic version; an unusually fine copy of the "Breeches Bible" printed in London, 1615, this and the "Bug Bible" gaining their names from curious textual variations; there are early English Bibles in beautiful mosaic bindings; early Hebrew Bibles; Dutch Bibles ornamented with solid silver decorations and clasps on the bindings; a French Bible of 1701 in a magnificent inlaid binding; a copy of Baskerville's beautifully printed edition of 1763; and many later sumptuous and splendidly illustrated editions, such as the Doré and Bida Bibles, the whole forming an imposing assemblage of the historic editions of our Scriptures.

EARLY WOODCUT BOOKS

The collection of early woodcut books is notable, and contains the greatest examples of the books with wood engravings published during the golden age of the art in the latter part of the Fifteenth Century and during the Sixteenth Century. An outstanding work is the celebrated Nuremberg Chronicle, a copy of the Editio Princeps of 1493, containing over two thousand engravings executed in spirited style by Wolgemuth and Pleydenwurff; there is a copy of Columna's (or Colonna's) Hypnerotomachia Poliphili, printed by Aldus in 1499, a beautiful copy in a binding by Chambolle-Duru, of the masterpiece of the Venetian school of wood-engraving; Etterlyn's Kronica of 1507, in which the story of William Tell is published for the first time, the story being illustrated by a large and beautiful woodcut; a copy of Livy printed by Schoeffer in 1523, and having two hundred and fifty very fine and remarkable woodcuts by Burgmair and others; two Sixteenth Century works of Dürer with the engravings of art anatomy, etc.; and a copy of Treitzaurwein's Der Weiss Kunig, the First Edition, 1775, although the 237 large woodcuts by Burgmair were executed in 1516-19, and used for the first time in this edition.

NOTED EARLY WRITERS

The period following the year 1500 contains many great names in the history of literature, and a few that are representative must be mentioned. The collection includes a copy of the extremely rare Second Edition of the works of Rabelais, dated 1547-48; the Praise of Folie by Erasmus, printed in Black Letter, the First Edition, 1549; Peter Martyr's Decades of the New World of West India, also printed in Black Letter, 1555; one of the noted commentaries by the great reformer John Calvin, 1562; a fine copy of Ariosto's celebrated romantic poem, Orlando Furioso; the rare work of Galileo, 1632, but few copies of which exist as, by Papal Decree, the edition was ordered burned; a beautifully illustrated edition of Phaedrus; a unique copy of the First Issue of the First Edition of Fenélon's Telemaque, accompanied by the original copyright patent signed by the Emperor Franz I.; a splendidly illustrated edition of Boccaccio in ten volumes, bound by Chambolle-Duru; and numerous other works of high importance and interest.

EARLY ENGLISH LITERATURE

This is a notable section of the library and many First Editions of rare works by contemporary poets and dramatists are found, including Spenser's Complaints, 1591, with the earliest references to Shakespeare; and his Colin Clout, 1595. There is a fine set of the First Folio Edition of Ben Jonson, 1616-40, very rarely found in perfect condition; George Chapman's great translation of Homer, (1611-14), a splendid copy of the rare First Edition. Shakespeare is represented by copies of both the Second and Third Folios, 1632-64, and also the first separate edition of Julius Caesar. There is a beautiful copy of Beaumont and Fletcher's Comedies and Tragedies, the First Edition, 1647; and Milton is well represented by a copy of Paradise Lost, 1668, and his History of Britain, 1670, both First Editions; and there is a set of the rare First Collected Edition of his Works published at Amsterdam in 1698. To the above could be added the names of Dryden and Gay and numerous other contemporary writers who made their time a notable one in the history of English literature.

BINDINGS

The fine bindings form one of the richest sections of this library, and they are of extraordinary interest. Examples of the work of all the notable modern binders can be found, and there is a fine gathering of the work of the earlier masters, some of the volumes being of great association and historical interest, having been bound for kings and queens and other distinguished persons. Among the foremost in importance is a wonderful mosaic binding by Samuel Mearne, the Royal Binder, and greatest of all English bookbinders; and there are other examples, finely preserved, of the ornate bindings of the time of the Commonwealth.

There is a copy of the Book of Common Prayer especially bound for William of Orange and Queen Mary, a rare example, but few of their books being now in existence; also a volume bound for Louis XV., with his fine armorial stamp on each cover. There are numerous early bindings of smooth morocco; volumes with bindings richly inlaid; others ornamented in silver, etc. There are beautiful examples of the work of Chambolle-Duru, Lortic, Joly, Boyet, Bauzonnet, Pratt, Bedford, Bradstreets, and many other names that any lover of fine bindings will recognize as the greatest workmen that the art has produced.

AUTOGRAPH LETTERS, ETC.

There is much interesting autograph material in the library, including a collection of autograph letters, poems, etc., of American authors, no less than thirty-eight leading authors being represented by important letters, poems and other manuscript material; a notable collection of long and interesting letters of Benjamin Disraeli to his sister; numerous letters and memoranda from Thomas Carlyle to his publishers, relating to the publication of several of his noted works; important letters of George Washington, Benjamin Franklin and Paul Jones; a work by Monselet in which no less than seventy-four autograph letters of distinguished persons have been inserted; and much other valuable material, including a complete manuscript by Dumas.

ASSOCIATION BOOKS

There are numerous association books, presentation copies, and books from the libraries of famous persons in the library. Association books bring us into direct communication with the writers. Our hands touch the same covers, and our fingers turn the same leaves as they did long ago. Included in the collection is Browning's copy of Addison's Poems; Alexander Pope's copy of Bacon's Advancement of Learning; Melanchthon's copy of Terentius, with a great number of annotations in his hand; Carlyle's own copy of a Hebrew Grammar; an inscribed work from Humboldt's library; Browning's proof copy of his Dramatis Personae; presentation copy of Lewis Carroll's Phantasmagoria to Charles Kingsley; and presentation copies from John Ruskin, Sir Arthur Helps, Oliver Wendell Holmes and others.

THE CATALOGUE

THE CATALOGUE

ARIOSTO, Lodovico.

Orlando Furioso. Venetia, 1558.

Engraved title, and numerous full-page woodcuts and head- and tail-pieces. Quarto, full blue levant morocco, extra, back and sides panelled in gilt, very wide inside gilt borders, gilt edges, by Bradstreets.

Fine copy of this celebrated romantic and fantastic poem, the subject of which are the fabulous and chivalrous adventures of the paladins of the age of Charlemagne.

ARIOSTO, Lodovico.

Orlando Furioso. Nouvamente adornato di Figure di Rame la Girolamo Parro. Venetia, 1584.

Engraved title and over 50 full-page copper plates, initial letters, etc. Quarto, old tree calf, gilt back, sprinkled edges.

A fine copy of this beautifully illustrated edition.

ARISTOTLE.

Organum. Venetiis: Aldus Manucius, 1495.

Quarto, beautifully bound in full red straight-grained morocco, back richly panelled in gilt, sides with broad scroll borders enclosing corner ornaments of delicate lace-like design; pale-blue watered silk doublures and fly-leaves, gilt edges, by Bozerian.

A beautiful copy. From the library of Robert Hoe.
First Edition. A perfect copy of Vol. I of the Works.
Contains some of the most noted of the writings of Aristotle, one of the most illustrious philosophers of antiquity, and, if considered with respect to the intellect alone, perhaps the most remarkable man that ever lived, no other philosopher having exerted so great and so permanent an influence on the minds of men in the history of Western civilization.

ARMSTRONG, Walter.

Gainsborough and his Place in English Art. Illustrated with 10 lithographic facsimiles in color and 62 photogravures. London: Heinemann, 1898.

7 volumes, large octavo, original half morocco, backs with broad bands gilt tooled, sprinkled edges.

The First Octavo Edition, with contents unusually clean.

AUSMO, Nicolaus de.

Supplementum Summae Pisanellae. Venetiis: Leonardt Wild de Ratisbona, 1489.

Two columns to the page. Initial letters rubricated throughout. Thick octavo, in an ancient brown morocco binding, with two clasps.

Confusion exists as to the date of the printing of this book, some bibliographers maintaining that it was printed in 1479.

BACON, Francis, Lord Verulam.

The Essays or Counsels, Civill and Morall, of Francis Lo. Verulam, Viscount St. Alban. Newly enlarged. London, 1629.

Small quarto, full green levant morocco, gilt edges.

BACON, Lord Francis.

On the Advancement of Learning. No place or date, wanting title. (Early edition.)

With engraved portrait of Bacon. Quarto, full maroon levant morocco, sides with gilt fillet border, title lettered on front cover, by Strikeman.

An association book of the greatest interest, being Alexander Pope's copy, with the following inscription on a small slip of paper pasted on fly-leaf:
"The Lord Bacon's Advancement of Learning. Ex libris Alex. Pope," in Pope's handwriting.
Inserted is a leaf of the original manuscript of Pope's essay on the dramatic author, Colley Cibber, ten lines, and three rare engraved portraits of Pope.

BACON, Lord Francis.

The Works of Francis Bacon, Lord Chancellor of England. A New Edition by Basil Montague, Esq. London: William Pickering, 1825-34.

Engraved portrait. 17 volumes, octavo, full tan calf, polished, backs richly gilt, gilt tops, uncut, by Tout.

Fine set of the best edition of Bacon.

BACON, Lord Francis.

Novum Organum. London: William Pickering, 1844.

Includes Jerome's "Prologues" and "Arguments" to the various books.
Rubricated throughout.

BIBLE. (Paganinis' Vulgate Bible.)

Biblia Sacra Latina, Vulgatae Editionis cum prologis, S. Hieronymi cum Interp nom. Hebr.... correcta ac studiossime emendate per Petrum Angelum de Monte Ulmi ordinis minorum Seraphici Francisci. Venice: Paganinus de Paganinis, 1497.

Small quarto, in a superb silver binding, pierced all over, with large silver clasp. On the front cover is large oval medallion of the Pope, with four corner medallions in pierced work representing a Cherub, a Dove, a Winged Lion and a Winged Horse; on the back a large medallion of St. Peter, with four smaller ones, same as on the front; the back with a pierced design of a floreated series of panels, the clasps with a similar design.

A splendid example of fine printing and early silver binding. This is perhaps the rarest Fifteenth Century Bible printed in this size. The type is a very fine Gothic, double column, 54 lines to the column, with the initial letters painted in red throughout.
The volume is in extraordinarily fine condition; no doubt due to the precious binding in which it is encased.

BIBLE. (Biblia Latina, 1498.)

Biblia Latina. Basel, 1498.

Parts One and Two complete, Part 1, 377 folios; Part 2, 318 folios. Two and three columns to the page, initials rubricated, a few large ones heightened with pure gold. Thick quarto, embossed parchment over oaken boards, green edges.

Fine copy.
This Bible contains a few curious woodcuts. (See Part 2, reverse of t2, also of t4.)

Biblia. Dat is de Gantsche H. Schriften, etc. Amsterdam, 1632.

Thick 12mo, finely bound in black circular-grained morocco, the front and back covers surrounded by a silver frame artistically chased, with two heavy silver clasps of elaborate design and workmanship, gilt gauffered edges.

A choice Dutch binding in perfect condition.

BIBLE. (Mosaic Binding, with fore-edge painting, 1650.)

Holy Bible. The Old Testament and the New. With Concordance. London: Printed by the Company of Stationers, 1650. [The Concordance is dated 1642.]

Octavo, black morocco, back panelled with inlays in yellow and red, the sides with gilt border within which is a broad frame composed of festoons with repeated open flowers; inner panel with yellow corner ornaments, center piece of red morocco with yellow center bordered by red and yellow tulips and other flowers, gilt inside border, gilt edges, under the gilt of the fore edges a drawing of two children surrounded by animals and flowers, and between them an open book inscribed: "Search the Scripture for in them you think to have Eternal Life."

A choice and excessively rare specimen of Commonwealth Mosaic binding in most excellent state of preservation.

BIBLE. (French, 1652. Derome Binding.)

La Bible, qui est Toute La Sainte Escriture du Vieil et du Nouveau Testament. Paris, 1652.

Engraved title. Two volumes, small octavo, contemporary full red morocco, the sides and back richly gilt tooled with a delicate floral design of the "all over" type, gilt edges, by Derome, lejeune.

A beautiful specimen of typography and binding.

BIBLE. (Mosaic Binding, 1655.)

Holy Bible, containing the Old and New Testaments. London: Printed by John Field, 1655.

Narrow 12mo, in a fine mosaic binding of black morocco, the back being richly gilt, sides covered with mosaic design within narrow red border, the large central panel consisting of floral sprays within red border. There are also tulips in red. Inside gilt borders, gilt edges, with a full levant morocco solander case.

A fine example of Commonwealth binding. One of the tools used in the binding is of the tulip, similar to one used by Mearne.

BIBLE. (Oxford Illustrated Bible, 1680-1.)

Holy Bible, including the Book of Common Prayer. Oxford, 1680-1.

Illustrated with 160 full-page copper engravings, including portrait of Charles II. Thick octavo, handsomely bound in olive-brown morocco, back richly gilt, sides gilt and blind tooled, gilt gauffered edges.

DISRAELI, Benjamin.

A Collection of Autograph Letters from Benjamin Disraeli to his Sister. Eleven long and interesting letters written in ink on 77 pages, mostly undated. Accompanied by typewritten copies. Inserted are very fine engraved portraits, 11 of Benjamin Disraeli, and one of his father, Isaac Disraeli.

Bound in a quarto volume, full blue levant morocco, the front cover having corner ornaments of coronets, and central cream-colored lettered panel. Watered-silk doublures and flies, a fine binding by Stikeman.

These letters of Benjamin Disraeli to his sister, the confidante of his youth, contain references not only to Disraeli's writings, political life and European travels, but also to many famous people whom Disraeli had met, or whose works he had studied. Among these are the Duke of Wellington, Lord Chesterfield, Henry Hallam, Sir Robert Peel, Daniel Webster, Thorwaldsen, Samuel Taylor Coleridge, George Sand, and many kings and noblemen.

One of the letters contains much on Daniel Webster, and relates the following amusing incident illustrating Webster's sturdy American independence: "Brougham asked Webster verbally to dine with him and sent a card the next day, headed 'To remind.' Webster answered by another card headed 'To acknowledge.' " Disraeli's comment was, "Very American, don't you think?"
